

Express Mail No. EU800441115US
Moving Element Game
August 13, 2003

ABSTRACT

This invention is for a poker-type card game, a method to play a game and an electronic device that displays the game. The game is played by having rows or columns of cards move across a video screen. An icon moves across the screen. When the icon hits a card, that card becomes part of the player's hand. The hand can then be compared to a paytable and the player is paid accordingly. The game can also be played with symbols instead of cards, and the icon can either be controlled by the player or it can move automatically.